COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

It is generally understood that if a new home is to be constructed or existing property is altered, rebuilt or extended that it requires a building permit. However it is observed that a very few have failed to obtain the required permit before starting construction or repairs. There is no charge for issuing building permits, only a little time to visit the Town Office by the applicant is all that is required.

The building ordinance can be enforced by notifying a violator in writing and if he then fails to request the necessary permit a fine of five dollars for each day's neglect may be recovered before any court.

During the summer each time that it rained a small area at the corner of Spring and Main Street would settle or a hole would develop. This past week this area was excavated and it was found that the underground drain had broken down at this particular location. It was also found that the tile was in bad condition for about a distance of 80 feet. This condition has been corrected by installing a new pipe.

Chloride was distributed on several of the gravel roads in the Spring. As it had leached out to some extent a new application was made this past week. This should be sufficient to take care of the dust problem for the remainder of this year.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

FISH & GAME ASSOCIATION MEETS AT LOCKE MILLS

Forty-eight members and guests met at the Town Hall in Locke Mills on Sept. 19 for the regular meeting of the Mt. Abram Fish and Game Association, Inc.

The meeting, which was preceded by a pot luck supper, was called to order at 7:30 by President Arthur Gilbert. The secretary's and treasurer's repots were read and approved.

Lewis Cole reported that the screen had been put in Twitchell Pond Dam. He said there was no charge for welding or steel but that the dam was leaking. Arthur Pfaudler volunteered to go down to see what could be done about this. It was suggested that a public supper be held in October but the motion was not carried. Norwood Ford reported that Warden Wilson said 1500 togue were to be put into South Pond on Sept 20th. Herman Bennett reported on the state meeting and gave their new slate of officers. Mrs. Agnes Hathaway gave a very interesting talk on her three weeks at Conservation Camp. The mystery package was won by Bert Dodge and netted $1.20.

The meeting was adjourned and movies were enjoyed. After the movies it was voted to buy the sound projector that had just been used.

NAVY SETS DECEMBER 14 FOR ANNUAL NROTC EXAM

V Adm. James A Holloway, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, has announced that the 12th annual National Competative Examinations for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps will be given to interested high school seniors and graduates on December 14. Application forms are now available and must be received before November 10, he added.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the naval academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a commission while studying at the civilian college of his choice which has an NROTC unit. All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives an annual retainer of $600 for four years. During the summers the student goes on fascinating training cruises as a midshipman. After completing the usual four year college course he is commissioned in the regular navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty with the Navy's far flung fleets. For those who apply and qualify, immediate assignment to flight training will open new careers in naval aviation.

High school seniors and graduates between the ages of 17 and 21 may apply for the NROTC aptitude test. Those who make the qualifying score will be given a rigid physical exam early in 1958. From the pool of qualified young men remaining in competition, approximately 2,000 will be selected to begin their naval careers next September.

The NROTC College Training Program is also open to enlisted men on active duty with the Navy and Marines. Separate quotas are established for applicants from within these services.

Application forms are available at all high schools, colleges, Navy Recruiting Stations or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Washington 25, D. C.

WEST PARIS VOTES MONDAY TO FORM NEW TOWN

With the decisive vote of 480 to 24, the voters of the western end of the town of Paris voted Monday to establish a separate town. This procedure was authorized by the last session of the legislature and was not opposed by residents of the South Paris section.

The decision is the result of several years of strife over school matters, mainly in attempts to consolidate the town's high schools at South Paris. The West Paris Alumni Association was behind the movement begun last year toward organization of a new town.

The next step in the program will be the organization of the new town. Under the act, a town meeting may be called by any justice of the peace in Oxford County, who will issue his warrant to any legal voter in the new town, directing him to notify the residents to meet at a time and place specified on the warrant, with seven days notice of the meeting. At this meeting, the new town officers, school committee and other officers may be chosen.

The present boundaries and town officers will remain effective until the new town is organized.

Residents of the new town will not be obligated to assume any of the bonded indebtedness of the high school at South Paris. All other existing liabilities will be assumed by each town in proportion to the valuation taken in April.

Any existing surplus will be divided between the two towns in proportion to the valuation.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Sangerties, New York: A proposed 23rd amendment to the Constitution of the United States, known as the Gwinn amendment, consists of one clear sentence: "The government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial, or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution."

The possibilities within that simple statement of principle are literally enormous.

The government has billions upon billions of dollars invested in business enterprises of many kinds, all of which are performing functions that can and should be handled by private enterprise. These socialized businesses could be sold, and the money used to reduce the national debt, or to cut taxes, or both.

But that is only the beginning. Government business enterprises are tax-free, in an age in which private business corporations pay up to 52 per cent of all their profits in federal taxes alone. On top of that, it is common for government business enterprises to operate at a loss, which means that they must be subsidized by all the taxpayers. Once they were sold to private enterprise, the subsidies would end and they would become major taxpayers. The gain to the nation over the years would run into tens of billions.

From The Arvada Enterprise, Arvada, Colorado: Year around schools, to alleviate the nation's crowded schools is still a much-talked of subject and in a few communities over the country experiments are being set up to try out a 12-month school period.

Running the school systems on a 12-month basis instead of on the present nine, should greatly increase the number of students that each present building can handle. Whether this saving in capital expenditures would be more than the increased salary load of a 12-month school year, plus the added expense of air-conditioning buildings for summer use, plus other added expenses seems to be a problem that nobody can now answer authoritatively. Perhaps these present experiments will bring out the correct answers.

One of the biggest stumbling blocks to the 12-month school system, even if it does prove to be economically better, is tradition. Parents and teachers alike balk at the plan, and the students like it no more than they care for the present school set up.

THERE MUST BE A BETTER WAY!

Economic Highlights . . . . .

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The cost of schools is a burning problem in almost every American community. School taxes are at an all-time high, and rising. Even so, the classroom shortage is estimated at 200,000. And the school population increases at the rate of 1,250,000 a year.

These facts give weight to an impressive article in the September issue of The Reader's Digest. Written by Holman Harvey, its title is a clue to its point and moral—"Do School Pupils Need Costly Palaces?"

Mr. Harvey begins by describing two actual new schools. One is an attractive and excellent plant. It has 14 cheerful classrooms, is designed to accommodate 350 grade-school children, and was built at a cost of just under $400,000 or about $28,000 per classroom. The other has the same number of classrooms and handles the same number of children—but the cost worked out to among $65,000 per classroom, or practically three times as much.

Why was this so? The reason is simple. In the first school, one half of the entire space is given to teaching space—that is, classrooms. In the second school that is true of less than 25 per cent of the space. And this school is not at all exceptional in this regard. So, to quote Mr. Harvey, "While school funds are lavished on facilities befitting an exclusive club, America is in a desperate plight for sheer lack of classrooms." Then, to make a bad matter worse . . . most of the schoolteachers of the nation—the very soul and heart of the solid schooling our children need—are trying to live in salaries which no self-respecting bank would offer a junior clerk."

Mr. Harvey quotes a recognized authority on school house construction as saying, "The waste of taxpayers' money in school building is fantastic," and goes on to describe some examples. One recently built high school has a $750,000 gymnasium, and another a $300,000 auditorium. A projected $1 million grade school will have an auditorium with a three-stage theatre attached; a big gymnasium, a library with an open fireplace, a teacher's smoking lounge, two stainless steel kitchens, and so on and so on. Maintenance costs will be extremely heavy. But soon the town will need another school—because of lack of classrooms.

In addition, Mr. Harvey finds, there are many needless wastes in schoolhouse construction. It has been proven that excellent schools can be built at far lower square-foot costs than are common today. This is done by the use of new types of plans, new materials, labor-saving techniques, etc. Multi-purpose rooms, by reducing the number of separate rooms needed, are highly economical. Carefully planned schools, constructed of first-quality materials and with all the required facilities, have lately built for about $10 a square foot and even less. Lavish schools may cost as much as $30 a square foot.

Mr. Harvey ends on a note of advice. Here it is: "...since school boards are ultimately responsible to the citizens, you, as a voter, can put a stop to the endlessly harrassing increase of your school taxes if you'll act on the knowledge that pupils don't ask for or need the palaces that the architects dream up for them. Remember that our first need is for better paid teachers—and for 200,000 new classrooms."

"ATTLEBORO" PROJECT: BRINGING EDUCATION HOME

The educational world may eventually review the accomplishments of a pioneer university extension program being conducted by Boston University for the second consecutive year in Attleboro, Massachusetts. This undertaking, a joint effort by the University and Attleboro school authorities, utilizes the physical facilities of that city's high school to provide regular college courses with full degree credit and constitutes one possible thrust at an answer to spiraling college enrollments throughout the United States.

During the current first semester program, four professors will teach courses in the natural sciences and American civilization. Their weekly trips to Attleboro from Boston permit a close student-teacher relationship in a three-hour class session, which covers the same course material as presented on the "mother" Charles River campus of Boston University.

One reason why this program is attracting attention is that it supplements both existing and planned higher education plant expansion. Private and public institutions now find it difficult to raise funds to accommodate all the young people who want to go to college. Many more will soon be knocking on academic doors.

Rather than have students come en masse to the campus, the university is sending its faculty and classroom technique to the community. Some institutions of higher learning require their students to take only the last two "major" years "in residency," so, in this case, freshman and sophomore requirments can be met in this new off-campus "Attleboro" method of instruction.

The Boston University-Attleboro program has still another ramification. Not only does it serve the interests of young people who plan professional careers but it also caters to the needs of adult education. Anyone may enroll in the courses, for classes are not limited to students recently graduated from high school. It does not require much imagination to know that, with acceptance of this extension curriculum, adult education opportunities could be provided in countless cities and towns that never before had access to college subjects and the educators who mastermind them.

To the individual students, university classes bought to one's hometown are an educational boon—and a money saver! One of the major problems of undergraduates, once they are enrolled in a college, is to keep up with heavy financial obligations that inevitably accompany the four-year learning process. Unfortunately, thousands of freshmen and sophomores are forced to leave campuses across the nation each year because they cannot afford to continue.

Not only does "Attleboro" mean that young and old scholars can work from nine to five and gain college credit in the evening, but now the prospect of students dropping out of school because of financial difficulties is materially reduced. Certainly, it also means that more persons are likely to have an opportunity to finish their formal education.

Considerable support and interest have been given by local groups and organizations to support Boston University's extension activities in Attleboro. This makes for both a more alert community and a better educated one. College and high school educators throughout the country, as well as parents and potential students, have ample reason to view earnestly the "Attleboro" idea.

GOULD ACADEMY

Tryouts for the Gould Academy Cheerleading Squad were held on Wednesday, September 18. The Student Council judged the 27 candidates first as a group, then in threes, and finally alone, making their selections on the basis of motion, expression, voice, appearance, and ability to work as a team.

Ten girls were chosen for the 1957-58 cheerleading squad and they are the following: Kaye Blake, Pamela Young, Jayne Kneeland, Gloria Kneeland, Susan Saunders, Bessie Beck, and Jane Greig of Bethel, Susan Martin of Intervale, N. H., Anita Horel of Rangeley, and Heath Sandbach of Stamford, Conn.

South Paris Here Saturday.

Saturday at 2:00 p. m. Coach Scott's gridsters will be meeting the South Paris High Cardinals in the home opener for the Bethel eleven. With a 20-7 victory over Bridgton last Saturday the Huskies are favored to win. The Paris club has a 13-13 tie with Bridgton and a 12-13 loss at the hands of Norway. However, Paris-Gould games are never decided until the final whistle as the snappy Cardinals always rise to a peak in this one.

Coach Scott will probably stand pat with the same starting line-up used last Saturday. All the men came through without injury and should be in good shape for Saturday's encounter.

Gould Wins Opener 20-7

Gould Academy opened its 1957 football season with a 20-7 victory at Bridgton last Saturday. The Academy eleven scored in the first period with Gerry Smith striking from the center of the line for 15 yards. The point after failed.

In the second period the Huskies scored twice as Smith again did the scoring with a 47-yard sweep around end and a one-yard plunge over the middle. Hill rushed one point after while White passed to Sumner for the second. The first half ended with the winners out in front 20-0.

In the third period Bridgton took to the air to gain their ons and only counter in the game. Tom Austin passed to left end Clawson for 22 yards and a T. D. Lothrop place-kicked the extra point and Gould led 20-7 which proved to be the final score as neither team could produce another scoring punch.

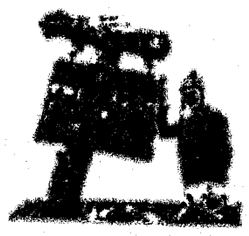
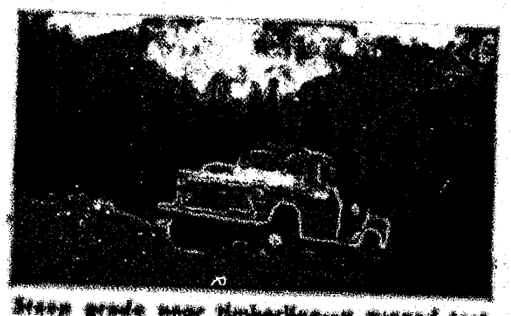
CHEVROLET PICKUP CLIMBS PIKES PEAK THE HARD WAY ...OFF THE ROAD!

An off-the-road run up Pikes Peak was called impossible by people who knew the mountain well. But a production Chevrolet pickup actually did it . . . to prove its pulling power and ruggedness!



All the way to the top without using the road! Here the truck scales high boulder pile near the 14,110-foot summit.



Steep grade near timberline—a rugged test of power. The power and torque of Chevrolet's famous Thriftmaster 6 proved more than a match for the most difficult grades.

Miles of loose boulders and thinning air offer extreme challenge. Yet the big Chevy engine never faltered. It performed flawlessly mile after mile, all the way up the mountain!

Final effort achieves summit! Pickup conquers Pikes Peak . . . shows why Chevrolet trucks are famous for staying and saving on tough jobs! Talk trucks with your Chevrolet dealer.

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston
Soil Conservation Service

The trial planting of grass on the riverbank at Fryeburg Academy has become well established. This planting was made last June on a section of the Saco River that borders land of the Academy. This was a trial that was financed by the Oxford County Soil Conservation District and Fryeburg Academy.

Students at the Academy furnished the labor under the direction of Douglas Marston of the Soil Conservation Service and Andrew Welch of Fryeburg Academy. Red Top and Reed Canary Grass was used for the planting and the final test for the project will come next spring when high waters and ice scour the banks.

Two projects are underway at the present time and they include a 1200-foot open drain on the Maurice LaCroix farm in Peru and a farm pond at the Armas Wuori farm in Oxford. Mr. Wuori is using a bulldozer for the pond construction and the Oxford County Soil Conservation District grader is working at the LaCroix farm on the drainage ditch.

Surveys and designs were also completed this week for two more ponds. One is for the Arlie Holman farm in Dixfield and the other for Harry Huntress in Hiram. The Holman pond will be for stock water and the Huntress pond primarily for irrigation.

According to Senator Byrd, this country's total debt—of the federal government, the states and local governments, corporations, and individuals—is $525 billion. That represents an increase of $200 billion—one third—in four years.

SO THEY SAY....

"Indecision is fatal. It is better to make a wrong decision than build up a habit of indecision. If you are wallowing in indecision, you certainly can't act—and action is the basis of success."—Mortimer A. Proctor, President, Vermont Marble Company.

"Many an idea is a notion without motion."—The Dexstar, publication of C. H. Dexter & Sons, Inc., Windsor Locks, Connecticut.

"It is not possible to have just 'a little inflation'. Once the community accepts the prospects of continued inflation, and begins to make its business decisions in the light of that prospect, the inflation ceases to creep. It learns to walk, run and finally gallop."—C. Canby Balderston, Federal Reserve System.

"The toughest part of putting something away for a rainy day is finding a clear day to do it."—Wall Street Journal.

"I think the right to work in our country is just as sacred as the right to vote and the right to a jury trial. I don't believe any organization in our country should be vested with the right and the power to say to any American: 'You shall not work unless you join my organization.'" —Senator Frank J. Lausche.

V. A. NEWS LETTER

Failure to report income above the legal limits will be costly to veterans or their survivors receiving pension from Veterans Administration, M. L. Stoddard, Manager of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus, Maine, said today.

Not only will they required to return over-payments from the date their income exceeded the legal limits, but also all regular pension payments back to the first of the calendar year, Stoddard said.

However, if the pensioner notifies VA promptly of an income increase above the statutory limits, VA will discontinue the pension as of the last payment and no over-payment of any type will result, he said.

Stoddard explained that pensions are not payable under law if the income of a pensioner without dependents exceeds $1,400 a year, or $2,700 a year with dependents.

Since VA must check the annual income of pensioners every January under the law, any increase above the legal limits from any source other than VA will be discovered at that time, Stoddard explained.

"So it's better to report excess income right away and avoid an over-payment," he said.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Jimmy Perkins celebrated his 7th birthday with a party Tuesday afternoon after school. Refreshments were served which included punch, ice cream and a cowboy cake made by his mother. The guests enjoyed several outdoor games. The guest list included Tommy Davis, David Hutchins, Dicky Waldron, Bill Eames, Ronnie Lothrop, Philippe Rolfe, Larry Fox, Bill Myers, and the guest of honor.
